

U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service

National Conservation Training Center

Training Announcement

Environmental Education Update Webinar Series

OUT8047

Description

This webinar series, presented quarterly by NCTC's Division of Education Outreach staff, will feature current environmental education topics and highlight upcoming environmental education courses offered by NCTC and our partners. This webinar is also an opportunity to share the various environmental education resources and training opportunities that are available to U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service employees and to network with colleagues and partners.

Our March 4th webinar will feature Hands on the Land (HOL), a network of 120 distinct partnerships between five Federal land management agency sites and local schools focused on promoting educational excellence. HOL provides students across America with hands-on learning in natural and cultural settings, and is coordinated by the National Environmental Education Foundation (NEEF). USFWS currently counts 13 site-school partnerships among the total. Presenters will include Josh Falk, Education Program Officer, NEEF and Maria Arnold, USFWS Youth Program Specialist, NCTC.

Objectives

Upon completion of this course, participants will be able to:

- List three current/ relevant environmental education topics that can be addressed at their site
- Identify at least two environmental education resources/lesson plans that can be used at their site
- Identify at least two environmental education training opportunities available for Service employees and other conservation professionals

Date

March 4, 2015 at 2:00 PM EST

Who Should Attend

Project managers, Resource managers, Visitor services professionals, Park Rangers, educators, outdoor recreational planners, and anyone whose resource management efforts would be enhanced or supported by youth initiatives

Length

45 – 60 minutes, on-line Livestream

Tuition

No cost.

No registration! Join Us:

Link -

<http://nctc.fws.gov/broadcasts>

Contact

Michelle Donlan: 304-876-7685

Michelle_Donlan@fws.gov